However, when a person suffers from chronic low self-esteem, it can be incredibly damaging to you and affect your own self-esteem. Here's why you should think twice about dating somebody with low self-esteem: 1. They don't love you. Let's start with this. Sure, they can tell you they love you one hundred times a day, but do they?

Paul focused on love in Romans 12:9-16, but since love is the core of the Christian life, he returns to it in 13:8-10. Reading 13:8-10 slowly, we notice that "love" appears five times, three times as a verb, twice as a noun. The passage has a sandwich structure. 13:8 and 13:10 both say love fulfills the law and 13:9 cites five laws, four from Exodus, one from Leviticus.
