At nineteen, Ashley Fiolek is already the top female competitor in a tough men's sport: motocross, a form of off-road motorcycle racing that is one of the most competitive and dangerous extreme sports in the world. Since going pro in late 2007, Fiolek has taken gold at the X Games, won the American Women's Motocross Championship twice, and become the first woman in American motocross history to be signed to a factory team—the highest echelon of industry backing. But Fiolek's rise has not come without obstacles. Fiolek was born profoundly deaf, a handicap that makes everyday life difficult—and competition on the track downright dangerous. Originally misdiagnosed as "mildly retarded," she was a painfully shy and introverted child—until her parents introduced her to the world of dirt bikes, which helped her escape the silence in her head and connect with others who shared her passion. She began racing at seven, and as her successes grew through hard work and no small number of broken bones, so did her confidence. Fiolek has never believed her disability should stand in the way of her dreams. Nor has she allowed her gender to limit her career—motocross historically has been a men's sport, but with the love and support of her dirt-obsessed family, including her "Grandpa Motorcycle," her little brother, Kicker, and her dogs, Turbo and Rocco, Ashley has emerged as one of the sport's most talked-about stars, changing the way the entire industry views women. Armed with her extraordinary talent, contagious grin, and deep faith in God, Fiolek continues to venture into unknown territory, relentlessly pushing herself—and women's motocross—to ever-greater heights. Kicking Up Dirt is a remarkable, inspiring tale of a young woman's courage and determination to succeed in the face of truly challenging obstacles. Off-road riding is one of motorcycling's most popular pursuits and also one of its best training grounds for improving street-riding skills. Off-road riding takes many forms, from motocross and enduro racing, to dual-sport day trips, to trail riding, to adventure tours. No matter the specific pursuit, all dirt riding (and much street riding) shares the same basic skill set. How to Ride Off-Road Motorcycles schools the reader in all the skills necessary to ride safely and quickly off-road. Chapters cover the basics, such as body position, turning, braking, and throttle control, then proceed to advanced techniques, such as sliding, jumps, wheelies, hill-climbing, and more. If you've ever wanted to try dirt riding or if you're an experienced rider looking to sharpen your skill set, How to Ride Off-Road Motorcycles is a perfect riding coach. A young boy, along with his father, head off to his first dirtbike race at PeeWee Motocross Track. After the racers take off, the boy experiences a setback he hadn't expected that leaves him questioning whether or not he can go on. When his dad explains to him the importance of never giving up and believing in himself, the son learns that if he is willing to try and is confident in himself, that anything is possible. XLH883, XL883R, XLH1100, XL/XLH1200 "This revelatory exhibition is curated by David Musgrave, one of the leading figures within an emerging generation of British artists. It presents new work by Musgrave and that of his contemporaries in juxtaposition with a 19th Century lithograph by Georg Scharf and a drawing by Yves Tanguy. Waste Material is an exhibition about time, matter and the imaginary. Hannah Greely's 'Assembly', a papier-mache stepladder which is home to numerous handmade insects, implies a future world from which human beings have been erased. At the opposite end of the time-line is Georg Scharf's Duria antiquior (A more ancient Dorset), a print made after a drawing by the geologist Henry De la Beche based on fossil evidence of prehistoric life, which offers a complementary impossible perspective. A degree of material and pictorial instability characterises the other work in the show. Rupert Norfolk's 'leaf' sculpture is in a state of fixed indeterminacy, being at once recognisable and not quite legible, and this has something in common with Yves Tanguy's shifting but precisely rendered, other-worldly forms. William Daniels' paintings are derived from paper tableaux that echo romantic and religious paintings of the past; they manage to be at once frail and graphically precise. Clare Stephenson's drawings take as their starting point constructions she has made from art historical reproductions, scraps of wood and wire. The results are unpredictable mutations, worlds in themselves that also initiate a peculiar dialogue with their origins. Both the drawings and the sculpture by David Musgrave take as their point of origin a small piece of material that has been reproduced in a way that stresses its potentially figurative characteristics."--The Drawing Room website.
